

ALEXANDRIA, VA.
THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 5.

ACCORDING to the report of the republican majority of the elections committee of the U. S. House of Representatives, giving the seat to which Mr. Elliott of South Carolina is entitled, to a negro named Miller, not one of the present members of the House from that State was elected, for the assigned reason that the system of voting in South Carolina, by which there is a separate ballot box for each candidate, in effect imposes an educational qualification upon suffrage, which, by a law of Congress, the southern States are prohibited from doing, though the northern States, Massachusetts for instance, do so with impunity. This country has long since ceased to be a union of free and equal States.

SOME of the South-hating northern republican orators who took occasion on the last "Decoration Day" to denounce and abuse Gen. Lee, the most distinguished American of the century, laid great stress upon the statement that the General was educated "at the expense of the country." But, apparently at least, they lost sight entirely of the facts that the General's own State was a part of that country, paid her full share of the expenses of West Point, and was entitled to have a certain number of her sons educated there; and also, that the text books in use there, up to the commencement of the war between the States, taught the General that his first duty was to his State.

THE REPUBLICAN majority in the U. S. House of Representatives yesterday evening turned Mr. Turpin out of that body, because he is a democrat, and gave his seat to Mr. McDuffie, because he is a republican, though the Congressional Directory says that at the election, the former received 18,778 votes and the latter 5,625. So republican Congressmen from the North, and not the voters of the 4th Congressional District of Alabama, elected the Congressman from that district. Home rule in the South seems to be as unpopular with northern republican Congressmen as home rule in Ireland is with the Tories in the British Parliament.

REPRESENTATIVE CHADLER, of Indiana, who has been defeated for re-election in his district, is one of the republican speakers General Mahone sent to Virginia last fall to tell the people of this State how to vote on their own State affairs. The General's friends are not prospering, politically, at present, nor is he.

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the Alex. Gazette.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5, 1890.
It is generally understood that Col. Canaday's resignation as sergeant-at-arms of the Senate was enforced and that Senator Spooner threatened to demand a committee of investigation unless it was tendered by the 1st of July.

The nomination of Mr. Johnson as postmaster at Danville, Virginia, is still held up in the room of the postoffice committee of the Senate, and, from present appearances, it is likely to remain so for some time. Several new papers have been filed in the case.

Among the strangers in the House gallery to-day were Messrs. Fish and Gibbs, two of the republican members of the New York legislature who kicked against Boss Platt, and have since been read out of the party by the State committee.

It is understood that the Senate finance committee, owing to the influence of the large sugar manufacturers in the North have practically agreed to reduce the duty on Sumatra tobacco to one half that provided by the McKinley bill.

Twenty-one southern republican members of the House held a caucus last night in the rooms of Mr. Bowden of Virginia. They determined to recommend to the republican caucus of the House the passage of the Lodge national election bill, or if that be too rank, the Rowell bill, amended so as to provide that the clerk of the House recognize the certificate of election issued by the federal supervisor, and not that of the State authority. They said that with such a law they would greatly increase their representation in Congress, but without it, there would hardly be a southern republican in the next House.

It is understood that the republican leaders in Congress, fearing that unless speedy action were taken on the silver bill there would be a stampede to free coinage, were induced to determine to attempt to push the silver bill through under whip and spur.

Representative Mason of Illinois will introduce in the House a bill to amend the interstate commerce law so as to permit railroads to make special rates for theatrical companies and others in parties of more than five.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia have advised the District committee of the House against any and all steam railroads crossing the Potomac at the Aqueduct Bridge, but not against electric railroads, to which class of roads the Washington and Arlington in the 4th class postoffice of Va. were made to pay.

The following changes in the 4th class postoffice of Va. were made to-day: Frying Pan, Fairfax county, G. F. Albach appointed postmaster, vice E. W. Orrison, removed; Lumberton, Sussex county, L. J. Chapin, vice J. T. Deal, resigned; Snow Creek, Franklin county, C. C. Brodie, vice A. M. Tatum, resigned.

The bill for a road from Petersburg, Virginia, to the national cemetery near that city, was reported adversely to-day in the Senate, because the Secretary of War said it was unnecessary.

Congressman Bowden, of Virginia, says he thinks Mr. Sanborn, of Norfolk, will receive the Japan consulate for which he is an applicant.

The House committee has finally reported the House bill to continue for ten years the provisions of the act to prohibit fishing in the waters of the District of Columbia. A similar bill has been passed by the Senate, but it was referred to the House District of Columbia committee which has not acted upon it as yet.

THE FIREMEN'S PARADE.

The firemen's parade to-day, given in honor of the Virginia State Firemen's Association, in session in this city, was a success in every particular, and though the weather was rather warm for marching, all who took part enjoyed it, while the spectators, who embraced many besides the citizens of Alexandria, were more than pleased. The parade was distinctively a firemen's parade, no other organization taking part. The apparatus of the various companies taking part was in excellent order, each piece looking as bright and new as when first turned out, while the decorations were beautiful. The firemen themselves were all dressed in their bright and showy uniform, and it is safe to say that no city in the State can turn out a better looking body of firemen who are more ready to respond or competent to act when the danger alarm is sounded.

The parade was under the management of delegates from the several fire companies and a citizens' committee composed of Messrs. John Donnelly, Chas. A. Strangman, M. Schuler, John H. Strider, R. T. Lucas, George S. Smith, Wm. Rogers, D. A. Windsor, E. E. Dowham, K. M. Latham, Geo. A. Appich, R. N. Gundy, Chas. Goodrich, J. C. Creighton, John Harlow, and Wm. H. Smith, and all worked earnestly to make the affair a success.

For the past few days many of the public buildings and a number of private residences have been gallantly decorated with flags, and early this morning at each of the engine houses there were men at work getting the apparatus ready for the parade.

Shortly after one o'clock the different companies proceeded to the general rendezvous—Cameron and Washington streets—and were assigned places in line. The streets were made lively by the companies headed by bands of music, marching from their houses to the places assigned them, while each piece of apparatus had admirers. When all was in readiness Mayor Dowham, the chief marshal, gave the command to march, and the procession moved as follows:

Mounted Police.
Chief Marshal and assistants.
Chief of the Alexandria Fire Department and Fire Wardens.
Ex-Chiefs of Fire Department and invited guests in carriages.
Ex-Mayors of Alexandria and the City Government in carriages.

Delegates to the Association from Richmond, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Danville, Petersburg, Staunton, &c.
Music.

Friendship Fire Engine Company.
Music.
Hydraulic Fire Engine Company.
Music.
Relief Hook and Ladder Company.
Music.
Columbia Fire Engine Company.
Music.

Junior Hose Company of Roanoke.
Hope Hose Company of Berkeley.
Charlottesville Fire Department.
FRIENDSHIP FIRE COMPANY.

The Friendship company was in command of Capt. James W. Webster, who had 40 men in line, dressed in red shirts, black trousers, white fire hats and belts. The members drew their hose carriage while the old hand engine of the company, one of the most attractive features of the parade, was drawn by four horses. The apparatus of this company appeared without decoration, as the members say that the beauty of their engine being unadorned is adored the most. Following the old veterans came the Junior Friendship, a company of little boys dressed as firemen, who drew a miniature engine. The company was headed by the Alexandria Drum Corps.

HYDRAULIC S. F. E. COMPANY.

The Hydraulic Company was under command of Foreman Geo. Petty, who had 35 men in line. They were uniformed in white shirts, trimmed with white, black trousers, white fire helmets and belts. The engine, looking as bright as when new, was drawn by four gray horses with glided hoofs, and had only a ribbon and a flower here and there to "set it off." The handsome new hose carriage of the company, without decoration, was drawn by the members and was considered a very handsome piece of fire apparatus. This company was headed by the Alexandria Drum Corps.

RELIEF HOOK AND LADDER COMPANY.

The Relief Hook and Ladder Company was in command of Foreman R. M. Latham, and had in line 20 men uniformed in white shirts, trimmed with red and gold, black trousers and black firemen's hats and belts. The truck was drawn by four black horses, and was tastefully decorated with white flowers. The company was preceded by Elmer's band, of Washington.

COLUMBIA STEAM FIRE ENGINE COMPANY.

The Columbia Company turned out sixty strong, under command of Foreman Charles Duffay, the men being uniformed in red shirts, black trousers, green fire hats and belts and each wearing a white silk badge and boutonniere. The lady friends of the company lent their aid in the decorations for the apparatus, which were beautiful. Reel No. 2, which has recently been painted and decorated by the members, was in line ready for service, having on its spool 850 feet of newly whited hose and was drawn by two bay horses. No. 1 hose carriage was beautifully decorated with white flowers and baskets and surmounted by a big floral ball. This carriage was drawn by the members. The engine was drawn by four bay horses, and was almost covered with flowers made into all kinds of designs. On the engine was a beautifully worked horseshoe surmounted by a white kid glove and suspended from which was a white dove. The decorations attracted general attention. This company was headed by the band of the Third U. S. Artillery.

THE JUNIOR HOSE OF ROANOKE.

The Roanoke company appeared in line under command of Jas. McFall, marshal, with 23 men. The members wore black trousers, red shirts and New York firemen's hats and belts. They drew their hose carriage which they brought with them and which is a very handsome piece of fire apparatus. The spool of the hose carriage was neatly decorated with ribbons. The Alexandria Drum Corps headed the company.

OTHER VISITING COMPANIES.

Delegates from Norfolk, Richmond, Portsmouth, Hampton, Petersburg, Charlottesville, Berkeley and elsewhere, all dressed in firemen's uniform, occupied the post of honor on the left of the line and added much to the effectiveness of the parade.

The following was the route of the procession: From Washington street down Cameron to Royal, up Royal to Queen, down Queen to Fairfax, down Fairfax to King, up King to Peyton, down Peyton to Prince, down Prince to Alfred, up Alfred to King, down King to St. Asaph, down St. Asaph to Duke, down Duke to Royal, down Royal to Wilkes, down Wilkes to Lee, up Lee to Prince, up Prince to Washington street, counter-march on Washington street to Oronoco street and down to King where the procession disbanded.

The various companies then returned to their respective engine houses where they received and entertained the visitors.

Ice water was furnished all the men in the parade from wagons which passed along the line.

The excursion to Mt. Vernon to-morrow evening will be a most enjoyable one and is expected to be patronized by the friends of the firemen. The price of tickets has been placed at 75 cents.

Twenty-three members of the Berkley Fire Company under command of C. W. Parks arrived this morning by the Norfolk boat.

The streets to-day presented a lively appearance being crowded with people, many of whom came from the surrounding counties and from Washington.

The banquet at the Braddock House to-night will be attended by all the visiting firemen besides a number of other invited guests.

One of the most enthusiastic firemen here is Col. Oliver Mountcastle, of Richmond. He is given to all kinds of pranks and is half fellow well met with every one. To-day after putting up a flag for a friend he took the ladder on which he was standing and going to the middle of the street mounted it and cried in a loud voice "Come here all of you and get a prize." He was immediately surrounded by a crowd which deserted a baker, who was plying his vocation near by, much to the latter's chagrin, but amicable relations were restored, when drinks all around were ordered.

The public and some of the private schools gave half holiday to-day.

Secretary G. G. Cumming is a jolly good fellow and knows how to assist the reporters. Chief Parris, of Washington, and C. T. Hollaway, President of the Veteran Firemen's Association of Baltimore, and other prominent firemen from a distance rode in carriages.

The marshal's aides were Rozier Brown, Henry McWilliams, Robt. Elliott, R. H. Atkinson, Jas. Johnson and others, and his couriers were Masters Stewart Smith, Robt. Dowham, Ernest Mulhauser and Frank Pollard.

To-night a banquet will be given at the Braddock House and to-morrow the visiting firemen will be given an excursion to Mount Vernon, leaving here at 3 o'clock.

Virginia's Debt.

Within the next few days a movement touching Virginia bonds will be given to the public. The unsettled obligations of the State, it is now said, are to be deposited under a power of attorney authorizing a committee to represent all interests. This committee is to formulate such a plan of settlement as the financial condition of Virginia warrants, and this final settlement is to be submitted to an advisory board consisting of ex-President Grover Cleveland, Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, Hon. E. J. Phelps and others. After they have recommended and approved a plan of settlement it is to be submitted to the creditors for their acceptance, and when accepted by them it is to be submitted to Virginia to be consummated. Either of the State depositories is to issue negotiable trust certificates for any sum, ten-forty, or other evidence of any part of the unsettled debt of Virginia; and these certificates as to the consols and ten-forty coupon bonds will be sold on the exchanges, so that hereafter transactions in Virginia securities may be made through trust certificates, and which transactions are now practically impossible because of the various and unknown condition of the past-line consols.

Republican Caucus.

The republican House caucus last night adopted a proposition offered by Mr. McKinley as a substitute for the previous caucus action on the silver question. It provides that the treasury shall purchase $1,500,000 of silver per month and issue legal-tender certificates, silver bullion to be coined to meet the demand of redemption. The subject of a federal election law was then discussed. Contrary to expectation, a very strong opposition has developed to the enactment of such a law. Several of the new Senators said that it would be better for the republican party to go out of existence than to go back to a grave-yard issue to maintain a majority in Congress. After an animated discussion it was apparent that no harmonious decision could be reached, and the subject was dropped for the present, at least.

Tribute of Respect.

At a called meeting of the Young Men's Sodality at Mt. Vernon, June 1st, 1890, the following preamble and resolutions in respect to the memory of their late fellow-member, Mr. WILLIAM E. MARKS, were unanimously adopted:

Be it further resolved, That we extend to the family our heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of bereavement.

Be it also resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Lodge and also inserted in the ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The stock market was very quiet at the opening this morning, and first prices were quite irregular as compared with last night's figures, but the changes were in all cases for small fractions. A drooping tendency was shown in the regular list at first, but the market soon developed a strong tone which was accompanied by more active trading and the entire market rounded with fractional advances, while a few specialties recorded larger gains. The market continued to show the same tone, and at 11 o'clock it was active and strong at the best prices reached.

Proceedings of Congress.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5.
SENATE.

After some unimportant business among which was the passage of the House bill to establish a national military park on the battle-field of Chicomauca, the silver bill was taken up, and Mr. Hiscok addressed the Senate in opposition to the free coinage of silver. He said the republican national convention (if the proposition for free coinage had been submitted to it) would have rejected it by an overwhelming majority.

HOUSE.

Mr. McKinley, of Ohio, from the committee on rules, reported a resolution providing that the House shall proceed immediately to the consideration of the silver bill, and that the consideration shall continue until Saturday at 3 p. m., when the previous question shall be considered as ordered.

Mr. Blount, of Georgia, said he had no objection to the time limited for debate, but he was informed that the chairman of the committee on coinage would be allowed to offer all the amendments which were admissible under the rules of the House.

When these were offered, there would be left no opportunity to the minority to offer any amendment. There would be given no opportunity on the part of the minority to ask a vote on the free coinage of silver.

At the republican caucus last night there had been much discussion, and it was necessary to whip in the friends of free silver, by means of this resolution. It was a wicked, shameful outrage on the minority.

There were many more on the other side of the chamber who would vote for free silver but for fear of the President. The President was in accord with the Secretary of the Treasury, and both were in accord with Wall Street. In the presence of the President and the enemies of free coinage, the republicans who favored free silver were driven to trampling down the rules of the House. It was a humiliating sight to an American citizen.

If the majority and the President yielded to the money power, the masses of the people would hereafter dictate and enforce legislation in their interests.

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, said that there was no doubt but that a large majority of the House was in favor of the unlimited coinage of silver. In order to prevent that fact from appearing on the record, it was proposed to gag every democrat in the House and many of the republicans. Every gentleman who voted for this resolution voted against free silver. The man who had not manhood and independence enough to stand up against this gag rule was an unfit representative.

The resolution making the silver bill a special order was adopted. Yeas, 120; nays, 117.

Mr. Blount voted in the affirmative and moved a reconsideration.

The motion to reconsider was tabled. Yeas, 124; nays, 118.

The republicans who voted in the negative were Messrs. Anderson, of Kansas, Bartine, Connel, Dehaven, Featherston, Funston, Kelly, Morrow, Hermann and Townsend, of Colorado. No democrats voted in the affirmative.

The burned vessel was the steam schooner Louis Bucki, from New York for Jacksonville, Fla., with coal oil and general merchandise.
